Burglars hit nine Cedar Point homes

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Chief Douglas Williams of the Bay St. Louis Police Department reports the Cedar Point area of the city has been experiencing a rash of residential burglaries in recent weeks.
In an effort to quash this outbreak of crime Williams has stepped up patrols, organized an anti-crime seminar for Hancock County residents and called for local citizens to be on the lookout for any type of suspicious activity.
The police chief feels this outbreak of crime is due to a slump in the economy which leaves many blue collar workers jobless and desperately in need of money—thus many people resort to thievery to support themselves and their families.
"Nine homes have been burglarized in Cedar Point. Televisions, clocks, tools, liquor, silverware and various other items have been stolen," Williams reports.
"We have also had sporadic burglaries in other areas of the city," Williams warns.
"We've solved four of the nine break-ins," he adds.
"Two juveniles have been arrested thus far in connection with the burglaries. Those youths are in the custody of the Hancock County Youth Court," the chief states.

"Two other subjects are being questioned regarding the thefts," he says.
Williams notes most of the residential burglaries occurred at unoccupied summer residences in 'broad daylight,' but will not reveal the names of owners or location of the homes by request of the homeowners.
But the chief says most of the break-ins occurred in Cedar Point north of Leonard Avenue.
Investigator Matt Karl is heading the burglary probe assisted by Lt. Gordon Campbell, Auxiliary Chief Dan Plaisance, and Patrolmen Harris Boudreaux, Chris Sand and Pete Marchetta.
Williams suggests, to help prevent a break-in, residents should secure all doors and windows, and lock these when away from home.
"We are working very diligently to stop this outbreak of crime in our city and implore anyone who might see something unusual to contact our office," the chief recommends.
"Although our officers usually spend long hours trying to solve these unfortunate incidents, we are no magicians. Therefore, if you are stopped while driving and detained a few minutes to answer a few routine questions please have a bit of compassion for the police officer who is trying to do his job by helping people who have suffered property losses," Williams explains.

"It is very pleasing to know that some decent, educated, law-abiding citizens of this community rendered their aid to help us solve four of these recent burglaries," the chief says.
CRIME SEMINAR
Bay police are sponsoring a Crime Prevention Seminar March 5 and 6 from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. each day at Bay Senior High School Auditorium on Blue Meadow Road.
Williams suggests, "Merchants and citizens of Hancock County are urged to attend this seminar to receive first-hand recommendations on measures to deter crime."
"We have contacted experts in the crime prevention field from the New Orleans Police Department to explain how to prevent burglaries, armed robberies, shoplifting and various other

CRIME PREVENTION—Members of the New Orleans Police Department Crime Prevention Division, along with representatives of Day Detectives Inc. of Gulfport and Honeywell Protection Services in New Orleans met recently with Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett to plan an educational forum for the public on crime prevention scheduled for March 5-6 at the Bay High School Gymnasium from 6 to 10 p.m. Officers of the Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police Department along with and Hancock County Sheriff's Department will also be at the forum designed to inform and educate the general public and business owners of methods currently employed to protect both homes and businesses from break-ins of the type which are currently plaguing the community. The forum March 5 will concentrate on commercial areas with discussion March 6 dealing with both residential and commercial security. The public is urged to attend. Joe Himel, left, of the New Orleans Police Department Crime Prevention Program will be guest speaker. Also at last week's meeting in the mayor's office and planning to attend the forum are, from left, J.G. Tranchina, sales representative of Honeywell Protection services; Matt Karl, Bay St. Louis Police investigator; John Isbell, NOPD coordinator for the crime prevention program; Bob Morrer and Larry Cook, both from the alarm division of Day Detectives. School Board, Supervisors to discuss closing dumps

By BRENT MACEY
The Hancock County School Board Saturday discussed a compliance schedule agreement written by School Superintendent Billy Sills for closing 16th Section land dumps now being operated by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.
The Mississippi State Board of Health has ordered the dumps be closed because they pose a health hazard.
Sills said he would attend a supervisors meeting Tuesday to see if the supervisors would accept the compliance schedule.
"If they do except it then it is up to them to deal with the matter," he said.
He added he did not believe the supervisors would accept the compliance schedule and stated, "If they do not accept it then this is the timetable we will have to go by."
Details of the schedule were not made available by the board.
Sills said representatives of the state and local health department will also be at the Tuesday meeting.
The school board has previously contended that the dumps should be the responsibility of the supervisors since the supervisors manage the dumps.

The supervisors in turn say the dumps are under the jurisdiction of the school board since they are located on 16th Section lands supervised by the school board and used to generate revenue for the county school system.
The school board has scheduled a 9 a.m. meeting Wednesday following the supervisors Tuesday morning meeting to determine if the school board will adopt the schedule.
In further business, the board approved by-laws of a new athletic conference which includes Hancock North Central.
Sills said the new game schedules cut back on the amount of travel to away games and decrease the amount of gasoline expenditures.
Sills said the county is currently paying $1.24 per gallon.
No copy of the by-laws were available at the meeting. Sills said they will be available Monday.
Sills also said he would prepare a recommendation to the board within the next month on how to preserve gasoline for the school district.

Also Saturday, the board accepted reimbursement of $332 from Donald Hillman, principal of Hancock North Central. The money was paid to Hillman for travel to basketball games and other business activities when acting under the title of athletic director. The board agreed that travel to athletic events should not be paid by the school district and had requested reimbursement.
Sills said some of that money will be reimbursed back to Hillman for justified travel expense.
The board also authorized a $1,200 payment to Hillman of some $2,000 owed to him for duties performed under the title of athletic director.
The board also reimbursed Hillman another $75 for postage.
Also during the meeting, the board heard from Larry Tully, president of MIRI, Inc. of Gulfport, roofing contractor hired to repair leaks at Hancock North Central.
Tully said leaks resulting from contraction of flashing on the building because of the cold weather have been

POT ROAST—Investigators Delbert Seay, left, and Alvin Lader of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department burn some 40 pounds of marijuana and assorted pills in an incinerator at a local grocery store Thursday afternoon. Lader said the contraband was seized during 1980 arrests and raids. He reported cases involving the illegal substances destroyed have been settled. Lader added that a court order from Place Two Circuit Judge Ruble Griffin was necessary to allow the sheriff's department to burn the contraband which was crowding the sheriff's office. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Major archaeological study planned

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
In about three weeks, a select number of Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian residents will receive an archaeological survey questionnaire.
Dr. R. Barry Lewis—a 1965 Bay Senior High School graduate, former Waveland resident and assistant professor in the Anthropology Department at University of Illinois in Urbana—will be sending the survey forms to 510 Bay St. Louis and 240 Pass Christian residents.
The survey is being financed by a 'seed grant' from the university for a possible major local archaeological project in the Bay area.
Lewis noted only one other archaeological study, conducted in Kentucky some 50 years ago, has used a mail survey technique to gather preliminary site information.
"The overall goal is to describe and interpret the changing patterns of past human adaptations to an estuarine environment on the northern Gulf Coast," Lewis stated recently.
"The proposed research is the first stage of a larger study," he noted.

"The results of this initial stage will provide the data needed for the construction of a cultural chronology for this region and a strong base for proposals to external funding agencies for support of subsequent research stages," Lewis explained.
The university's seed grant for the first stage research is $5,646.
Lewis said compared to studies undertaken in surrounding states, very

"I have a personal commitment to this study because I've lived in the area. This is also an opportunity for me to do a project which is fun and at the same time provide archaeological information about the Northern Gulf Coast," he noted.
"Most investigators infer the Mississippi Gulf Coast was an important transition area between cultural traditions and stylistic complexes which originated in the Lower Mississippi Alluvial Valley to the west and in the different, but contemporaneous traditions of northwestern Florida and Alabama to the east," the researcher explained.
"The Mississippi coast was also the site of the earliest European settlements along the Northern Gulf at the end of the 17th Century and played an important role in the colonization of the

MAP OF SURVEY AREAS—An upcoming archaeological survey in the Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian areas consists of five study regions. Dr. R. Barry Lewis of University of Illinois Anthropology Department lists No. 1 as an extinct beach ridge which lies to either side of the mouth of the Bay of St. Louis which has been the focus of settlement over the past three centuries; No. 2 as 'prairie flats', a low-lying pine savanna which has recently come under development for vacation home lots; No. 3 as mouths and adjacent shorelines of Bayou Portage, Jourdan and Wolf Rivers; No. 4 as the northern shore of the bay, a homogeneous strip of marsh and pine forest which increases rapidly in elevation to the north; and No. 5 as the bay itself where sea level changes over the past few thousand years have permanently submerged old shorelines and several known archaeological sites.

TICKETS AVAILABLE—Becky Rotundo, secretary of the 1981 O.L.G. Carnival Association, displays tickets for the OLG Ball now available in Bay St. Louis at Little Mushroom, Eatery Restaurant, and Princess Dress Shoppe and in Waveland at Golden Parrot, Lynch's Waveland Drugs and Champion Trophies. Identities of the king and queen will remain a secret until their presentation to their subjects on the night of the ball, Friday, Feb. 27. This year's theme also will be kept a secret until the night of the ball. Proceeds raised by the association are dedicated to the Bay St. Louis Catholic School system in an effort to alleviate some of the cost burden on the parents. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Nation's largest drug chain opens in Waveland

Revco Discount Drug Centers has opened its new Waveland store in the Chocktaw Plaza shopping center.

The self-service drug center is managed by Gerald Viator, a registered pharmacist.

Featuring a completely equipped, modern pharmacy, the full service store offers health and beauty aids, vitamins, health foods, photo finishing, small appliances and other products.

"We're pleased to locate our new store in Waveland and look forward to serving the community," said Revco President Sidney Dworin.

Headquartered outside Cleveland, Ohio, Revco has 1,494 stores in 26 states, making it the largest retail drug chain in the nation.

Sharp cost control and the elimination of expensive drug store

"frills," such as soda fountains and home delivery, make it possible for the company to pass considerable savings on to its customers, the official said.

Revco pharmacists currently fill over 35 million prescriptions annually and the company recently dispensed its 300 millionth prescription, they reported.

Senior citizens are eligible for a special ten percent discount on prescriptions and Revco brand products.

Children up to six years of age may enroll in Revco's Stock-Aid program which offers youngsters a ten percent discount on prescriptions, Revco brand baby products and vitamins.

Store hours are Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sundays 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. and holidays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Registration set this week at USM-NSTL

The University of Southern Mississippi has announced registration for the USM-NSTL spring quarter Wednesday and Thursday.

USM is offering six courses during the spring quarter for undergraduate and graduate credits.

Courses include: PS 471-571, Public Personnel Administration; JGU 425, 525, Business and Professional Publications; CHE 361, Physical Chemistry for Pre-Medical and Biological Sciences Students; CSS 425-670, Computer Graphics Design; MGT 454, Human Relations Management; and BIO 315, Cellular Physiology.

The PS 471-571 Public Administration course is part of the Masters' Degree Program offered at NSTL by USM. All major requirements for an MS in political science with an emphasis in Public Administration will be offered on site, one course each quarter.

A special registration for 471-571 is set for Feb. 24 from 3-4:30 p.m. in the USM office.

Registration for all other classes will be Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 18-19, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the USM office.

For additional information, contact Myron Webb, coordinator at Room 325, Bldg. 1100, NSTL Station, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520 or at USM Gulf Park, Long Beach, MS 39560, or telephone, (601) 864-2155.

Mississippi agency heads eye NSTL

A delegation of Mississippi officials and representatives of several major state agencies visited the National Space Technology Laboratories recently to become familiar with the activities of National Aeronautics and Space Administration and NSTL resident agencies.

Local officials are interested in of various federal and state agencies located at the installation.

They were hosted during the visit by Roy Estess, NSTL deputy manager. State Sen. Martin Smith of Poplarville, who represents Hancock and Pearl River counties, described the groups' visit as 'another step' toward establishing a state office at NSTL.

Also attending the briefings was state Rep. Terrell Braland of Pearl River County, who represented House Speaker C.B. Newman. Others in the delegation were Col. Charlie Blalock, executive director of the Department of Natural Resources; Bill Ball, executive director of the Department of Energy and Transportation; Richard Yancey, executive director of the Department of Wildlife Conservation; Wade McCoy, assistant director of the Research and Development Center; George Parsons, director of the Department of Planning and Policy; and Dr. P. T. Bankston, synfuel specialist for the Department of Energy and Transportation.

Bits 'n pieces

State Senator Martin Smith is to be commended for his leadership on a bill in the senate putting a big bite on drug traffickers.

As you all know, there have been some big drug busts in recent months, but because of light penalties, the traffickers got off lightly.

When someone's pocket book is severely threatened, he may think twice before entering Mississippi with drugs.

If more supplies of drugs are cut off, less will be on our streets.

Drugs are a severe problem and seem to be getting worse. We hope the Senate and also the House will approve this stiff anti-trafficking bill.

Let's make it hard on the pusher. We know that's what Senator Smith's aim is.

We are happy to see Bay St. Louis plan for the resurfacing of two blocks of Main Street and a portion of Beach Boulevard. Main Street has been a disgrace for far too many years.

The rash of wild dumping in Hancock County has been an eyesore for many years. We are glad to see our county school board close down the dumps on 16th Section lands.

Many years ago, wild dumping was supposedly against anti-pollution law. It is time for Hancock to catch up with the times.

The complaining by residents of Jourdan River is something of a great concern. We have noted erosion not only on the Jourdan but also on many bayous and canals.

It seems there is a need for an erosion control commission in Hancock County.

We have the water ways, let us protect them. It is good to see Superintendent J.D. McCulloch present recommendations for new school construction in addition to renovations of existing structures.

We hate to see, however, that the third graders will have to remain at the senior high for another year. We would hope the administrators could find some other solution to that dilemma.

That administrators report on capital improvements in the school system, coupled with a forthcoming report from the system's Needs Assessment Committee, should give the school board some firm ideas about the direction in which the Bay school system must move in the immediate future.

We feel that this school expansion is a must and should be given immediate attention.

The recent rains were something which must have had Rand Reidrich, county forester, dancing in the woods.

With so many fires in recent weeks, there are not very many acres of forest left in the county which have not been burned over.

We figure it would be hard to estimate the loss of timber in the county in 1980-1981 in terms of dollars.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

It's been a long time since I've given much thought to any ads. But, it seems every week is a price war. I wouldn't mind this, but I'm not sure I'm winning. How Do I Keep Score?

Dear HDKS: It gets that way sometimes, and it will stay that way unless you make it change.

Price is the bottom line in most situations, but only after a decision has been made to buy.

So advertising price, while a most important factor, is not always enough. If you list items and prices, you are assuming a decision has already been made to buy the item and all the prospects are waiting on is a price break.

But what about all those people out there who haven't thought about purchasing the item? If they haven't felt a need for the product or service, it's unlikely that they will react to an offer featuring price only.

Most sideshows, carnivals, flea markets, border towns, etc., have an overabundance of shops and stalls all featuring essentially the same goods at cut rate costs. And most of those walking by, do so feeling very smug in their aloofness that they don't need the displayed items.

The same side show mentality seems to permeate the management of many of the larger chain bargain stores, who apparently assume that customers will flock to the stores, stalk the aisles, and empty the shelves.

These moguls are correct to some extent. But many of those stalking by the myriad of shelves do so in complete ignorance of any need that might be met with one on the products thereon.

So selling is really a matter of showing how your products can meet a need, and then showing how you can accommodate this need at a good price and with reliable service.

To illustrate, a sofa-bed is more than just that—it is hospitality for a guest, or it may be an apartment expander for a cramped resident, or it may be a beginning for a young couple or single sitting up housekeeping on a limited budget.

The key here is imagery. You have to show how the prospect can enrich his life or existence by buying a certain item.

Then you make a reasonable offer to sell the item to him. The price is stage two—that's the easy part. Stage one separates the men from the boys.

CHRONIC FLOOD ZONE—Mailman Donald Strong wades through ankle-deep water in the 300 block of DeMontuizn Street in Bay St. Louis during a recent rain storm. Every time it rains a giant puddle appears in this area and it seems to take several days for it to dry up. Residents in this area, in filling in the ditches, have apparently failed to provide storm drains. This lingering pool of water is a safety hazard and will eventually cause the pavement to buckle and crumble. Possibly local residents and city officials can work together to remedy this recurring problem.

Fireplace, wood stove use precautions given

Mississippians who are trying to reduce their home heating costs with fireplaces and wood stoves may be creating a safety hazard they didn't expect.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission and Mississippi State Board of Health caution consumers to save energy safely.

Consumers increasingly are trying to improve their fireplace performance by installing glass doors or fireplace "inserts." Both accessories reduce the quantity of heated room air which escapes up the chimney. The fireplace insert, a woodburning device which fits into an existing fireplace, adds more heat from radiation and from natural or fan-forced circulatory motion.

But the accessories could cause problems with "factory-built" fireplaces, relatively new to the marketplace. For safety, householders should add only those accessories designed or approved for their particular fireplace. Use of other accessories may block crucial air vents, create excessively high temperatures in the fireplace, or cause other dangers.

Factory-built fireplaces are prefabricated metal units installed complete with chimney. Used widely in recent years in new home construction, they are less expensive than traditional masonry fireplaces. They also are called "zero clearance" fireplaces because they can be installed safely next to walls and other combustible surfaces. Some units have a brick or tile veneer which simulates a traditional masonry fireplace.

Installation and operating instructions usually are included with these units, along with information on whether glass doors or fireplace inserts may be installed safely. But this information may not always reach the homeowner if the factory-built fireplace is installed by the home builder.

Consumers who are unsure which kind of fireplace they possess or which instructions apply to the safe use of their fireplace should consult their home builder or fireplace manufacturer or their local fire department.

Consumers are urged to observe other safety precautions, too:

—Inspect fireplaces, wood stoves and chimneys once a year to ensure that they are in proper operating condition (i.e., no cracks in fireplace masonry or wood stove linings).

—Use only the proper fuel. Don't use coal in a fireplace or stove that is designed only for wood fires. Never use flammable liquids to ignite a fire.

—Try to keep the fire at a moderate level. Continuous burning of wood at a low-fire level may contribute to creosote build-up, increasing the potential for chimney fires and the corrosion of metal parts. Inspect the chimney and chimney connector of wood stoves at least twice monthly and clean if necessary.

Avoid overfiring the stove, since overheating may damage the stove and chimney connector or cause a fire in adjacent structures.

—Keep children away from fireplaces and wood stoves. They can be burned badly by touching such hot surfaces as fireplace screens or the exterior of a stove.

—Always keep combustible materials (kindling, newspapers, drapery, etc.) a safe distance from fireplaces and wood stoves.

—When constructing a new fireplace and chimney for your home or installing a wood stove and chimney, be sure that the work is done by a qualified person.

If you install a unit yourself, be sure first to check with your local building code officials or fire marshal for installation requirements and recommendations.

Information on other safety precautions for operating or installing wood-burning fireplaces and stoves may be obtained by telephoning the commission's toll-free hotline at 800-638-8326.

BUSINESS VIEWPOINT

by Richard M. DeVos
and Jay VanAndel

SPENDING LIMITATION WOULD CURE INFLATION

Incredible as it seems, it was not until 1974 that Budget Committees were established in both houses of the Congress. Until then, the various authorizing and appropriations committees decided how much money each segment of government would receive, regardless of how much revenue would be raised in taxes. On occasion, when there was significant economic growth, there were budget surpluses. Other times there was deficit spending.

Then, on July 12, 1974, the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Act became law. Its purpose was to bring economic discipline out of chaos. Among the goals of the new law were these:

—to assure effective Congressional control over the budgetary process;

—to provide for Congressional determination of the appropriate level of federal revenues and expenditures, and —to establish national budget priorities.

The last year in which there was a budget surplus was 1969. The combined deficit for the last five years is more than $225 billion.

In times of double digit inflation, it is reasonable to ask what happened to the Budget Committee "priorities" and their control of revenues and expenditures. The leaders of the committees have tried hard to accomplish the objectives of the Budget Act.

But because most legislators are vulnerable to demands from voters for one expensive program after another, and fear they will not be re-elected unless they accommodate those demands, Congress has been unable to kick the habit of deficit spending. The urge of promise now and pay later prevails.

To cure inflation, a spending limitation must be imposed on the Congress. Perhaps the members of the recently convened 97th Congress will recognize the problem and enact such a law.

An alternative is a Constitutional amendment to limit spending and balance the budget. It is a good idea—but the Congressional Budget Committees have yet to solve the problem of political promises with big price tags.

Reality of energy crisis a challenge

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, "THE ENERGY CRISIS: MENACE OR OPPORTUNITY?" by Lewis H. Gann, senior fellow at the Hoover Institution, Stanford University, is supplied to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research, Syndicated, 1981 of Claremont, Calif.

The rise in the world's oil prices has thrown the world's doomsday sayers into a new mood of depression. The forecasts currently made by many Western experts would make Cassandra into an optimist.

The age of the consumer—we are told—is over; technology has come to the end of its tether; worldwide poverty is inescapable; Western civilization faces breakdown.

The villains held responsible for our predicament are many. They comprise the Western consumer who heedlessly squanders the global oil reserves by cruising on the freeways with his girlfriend, or, more respectably, by driving his children to suburban cub-scout meetings or ballet lessons.

Another object of public opprobrium is the Arab oil sheikh, that stock figure of newspaper cartoons, a hook-nosed scoundrel in flowing robes whose greed results in ever increasing oil prices, and thereby contributes to worldwide inflation and global poverty.

Oddly enough, the higher a country's living standards and the lower its dependence on foreign oil imports, the greater the pessimism evinced by many of its leading specialists.

The prophets of gloom are most numerous in the United States and Great Britain; these are they very Western countries that are least dependent on oil shipments from overseas; both are favored by geography with large reserves of oil and coal; both can draw on an impressive reservoir of scientific and technological skills of the kind needed to cope with current energy problems.

Our energy problems are real enough; so is the present economic recession. But our existing problems should be kept in perspective. They do not amount to an earth-shattering catastrophe.

The last 35 years have in fact seen an almost incredible recovery after the devastation of World War II; during his or her lifetime, every middle-aged American has witnessed a phenomenal increase in living standards both in the developed and in many parts of the undeveloped world.

This prosperity would have been unimaginable to our parents in the 1930's when capitalism, according to its many critics, was doomed to permanent breakdown.

The Western economic miracle was helped to some degree by new discoveries of oil. Between 1939 and about 1965, the industrial world increasingly shifted its supply of energy from horsepower (still the main power of locomotion for Hitler's armies in Russia during World War II), and from coal.

Oil became the world's major source of energy and continued to be produced in every larger quantities.

Until 1974, oil prices actually declined in real terms. Thereafter prices increased, but for all the international hullabaloo concerning OPEC's alleged rapacity, the average American worker needed less time in 1980 to earn the cash to buy a gallon of gasoline than he did in 1950.

This is not to underestimate the problems occasioned by the recent increases in oil prices for the developed and, even more so, for the underdeveloped world.

The Gulf War, by damaging oil production in Iraq and Iran, has done serious harm to the economies of these two countries and of the world at large.

If the West were cut off by some sudden stroke from its Middle Eastern oil supplies, the results would be catastrophic.

Nevertheless, the part played by OPEC and by the assumed worldwide shortage of energy in bringing about the present recession can easily be overestimated.

Ironically, the two major Western countries with the lowest economic growth rates are the U.S. and Great Britain, the two powers least dependent on OPEC oil imports.

By contrast, West Germany, Japan, and Switzerland, none of which has a single oil well in its territory, have done better in the economic field than their English-speaking competitors.

Many of our difficulties are in fact of our own making, not OPEC's. By controlling the price of natural gas, we have deliberately kept down supplies and caused shortages to develop.

Our policy with regard to oil has been equally inept, and the Republicans' record in this respect has been no better than the Democrats'.

In 1975, for instance, President Ford failed to veto the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, a law dubbed by its opponents as the OPEC Relief Act.

As a leading scholar such as Thomas Gale Moore has pointed out, we proceeded to tax our own producers in this country, using the proceeds to subsidize imports.

Our policy caused the cost of imported oil to drop, whereas the cost of American-produced oil increased.

Not surprisingly, oil imports rose rapidly in the 1970's until they amounted to nearly half of our total at the beginning of the 1970's.

What of the future? The outlook is not as bad as the pessimists assume. As long as energy was cheap, consumers had no incentive to save on their heat and fuel bills.

The problem was compounded by political propagandists who persuaded the credulous that the problems of energy somehow derived from the conspiracies of bankers and oil sheikhs, and that great tankers, filled to the brim with oil, had been maliciously hidden off our coasts by the oil companies.

As oil and gas prices are fully decontrolled, and as prices continue to rise, consumers will increasingly invest in smaller cars; in domestic insulation, and so forth.

As Suliman S. Olayan, an international expert, points out, the price increases since 1973 have already occasioned remarkable improvements. The long-standing disparity between oil prices and prices for other forms of energy has disappeared.

Domestic consumers and industrialists alike have begun to heed the call for energy conservation and a more efficient energy use.

The development of extensive new fields in the North Sea, Alaska, and other parts of the world is under way.

Energy users have increasingly looked to other forms of energy, including coal, natural gas, synthetic fuels, solar power, and the like.

If we are determined to deregulate energy, we shall be able to draw on adequate supplies of traditional fuel for the rest of this century and well into the next.

We should not let an unfounded pessimism obscure our true prospects for the future. Prosperity or poverty—the choice is still our own.

A MAJOR CONTRIBUTION

So all businesses make major contributions to Mississippi's economy, with 96 percent of the state's business firms employing fewer than 50 people.

National research indicates that, between 1953 and 1973, small firms produced 4 times as many innovations per research dollar as medium sized firms and 24 times as many as the largest firms. Firms with 20 or fewer employees generate about two thirds of all new jobs in the United States; and firms less than four years old generate 80 percent of all replacement jobs.

So all business is the backbone of the American economy, and the Mississippi Economic Council has adopted several recommendations designed to enhance the development and expansion of this vital element in the state's business climate. Recommendations are:

—The Governor, the Legislature, and all state and local officials must cooperate in efforts to maintain a state and local business climate conducive to the development and growth of small business.

—Governments at state and local levels should support and encourage the development of small, locally owned businesses; and governments should offer programs of assistance to small business as deemed necessary and appropriate in consultation and cooperation with small business owners and operators.

—State and local governments should make available to small, locally owned businesses the same incentives as those offered to firms moving into Mississippi.

—State and local governments should eliminate unnecessary or inappropriate statutes, ordinances, rules, and regulations which discourage the development or expansion of small business.

Continuing efforts should be made to evaluate and to consolidate those agencies and activities of state government which are designed to encourage small business development.

The small business loan program of state government should be evaluated to determine effectiveness relative to cost.

Martin's Michoud Division realigns executive level

Richard J. Masi has been appointed director of business operations at the Martin Marietta Aerospace Michoud Division in New Orleans East. He succeeds William P. Ewig who has been named executive director for operations planning and material at the firm's Baltimore, Md. division. Masi reports to Kenneth P. Timmons, vice president and division general manager. His responsibilities include finance, contract administration, legal, and management information systems. The company has also named Herbert DeBorde director of management information systems. He is responsible for computer services, management systems and presentations-graphics.

Masi graduated from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, with a bachelor's degree in marine engineering. He also received a master's degree in business administration from the University of Connecticut. He has spent the last two years with Martin Marietta in Denver as assistant controller. He was previously with General Dynamics Corporation. He and his wife, Cathy, have three sons and one daughter. DeBorde graduated from Georgia Tech with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering. He was previously at corporate headquarters Lower Mississippi Alluvial Valley," he further explained.

Lewis said the questionnaires will ask residents how long they have lived at their present address; if they have discovered any old foundations, pottery, shell deposits or arrowheads while digging in their yards; and permission to examine, photograph and measure any visible artifacts cited.

The researcher emphasized that the study will not excavate yards or gardens, but will simply be a visual inspection of exposed archaeological features.

"We will plot the exact location of these artifacts on maps in order to determine the density of historic or prehistoric communities. We don't have to excavate—damaging property is not the intent of the study," he said.

Lewis noted coastal Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian is located on an extinct beach ridge which was deposited some 100,000 years ago.

The researcher revealed that some 8,000 years ago the beach front was located some seven to eight miles south and included what is now the Mississippi Sound.

Based on that fact, Lewis said several prehistoric Indian communities are located in the sound and bay.

"The Mississippi coast, being in a position east of the mouth of the Mississippi River and west of Mobile Bay has important archaeological value. There's a change in the styles of pottery found compared to surrounding states," he explained.

"We want to focus on Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian to identify changing cultural adaptations in that area," the researcher added.

"This will give necessary background to propose a larger study in order to preserve local heritage," Lewis stated.

The researcher lists and describes five areas (see diagram also) surrounding the Bay of St. Louis, a mushroom-shaped Holocene estuary, as:

—Stratum I is an extinct beach ridge which lies to either side of the mouth of the bay and which has been the focus of settlement over the past three centuries;

—Stratum II consists of 'prairie flats,' a low-lying pine savanna which has recently come under development for vacation home lots;

—Stratum III is the mouth and adjacent shorelines of Bayou Portage, Jourdan and Wolf Rivers;

—Stratum IV is the northern shore of the bay, a homogeneous strip of marsh and pine forest which increases rapidly in elevation to the north;

—Stratum V is St. Louis Bay. Sea level changes over the past few thousand years have permanently submerged old shorelines and several known archaeological sites.

"The initial research stage, to begin in three weeks with the questionnaires, will collect archaeological site survey information for Strata I and II—the beach ridge and prairie flats," Lewis reported.

"The second research stage, planned for the spring of 1982, will survey Strata III through V and complete the study of site distribution and density patterns on the different landform types of the study area," he explained.

Lewis said the second phase will also begin with a mailed survey followed by field visits.

"Banks of recently dredged canals will be examined by boat for shell middens, foundations and other cultural debris in profile," he stated.

Mary Neumaier of Biloxi, secretary of Mississippi Archaeological Association's Gulf Coast Chapter, recently said, "At a recent meeting we pledged support to Lewis in his endeavor to conduct this long overdue survey of this area."

"Lewis said it is hoped he can interest some Mississippi universities in providing summer field schools to help with this project," Neumaier noted.

The statewide archaeological organization consists of some 200 professional and amateur archaeologists with 50 members in the Gulf Coast chapter.

For membership or local survey information contact Neumaier at 115 Wilshire Blvd., Biloxi, Miss. 39531 or telephone 432-7228.

crimes," the chief notes. Williams says the "New Orleans" Police Crime Prevention Van will be driven here to assist the officers directing the seminars.

This is the first time the van has travelled outside the State of Louisiana.

The chief urges participation in the seminars by all local residents in order to show local gratitude to New Orleans for volunteering its experts to help direct the two-night event.

"These experts will speak and demonstrate the proper use of anti-theft equipment available locally," Williams reports.

SEAFOOD BUSINESSES ROBBED
A Bay St. Louis seafood market and a seafood restaurant were burglarized recently.

Williams reports, "On Feb. 9 at 9:20 a.m. we received a telephone call reporting that Spanish Trail Seafood Market at the corner of Washington Street and Old Spanish Trail had been burglarized."

"When Patrolman Robert Williams arrived at the market he found the burglars apparently gained entrance through a back door," the chief notes. "A cash register, an AM-FM radio, oysters and beer valued at $625 were stolen," Williams says.

"The case is under investigation by the patrolman," the chief added.

Regarding the restaurant theft, Williams said Karl received a telephone call at 10:45 a.m. Monday reporting the Seafood Inn, at US-90 and Carroll Avenue had been broken into,

"A grease filtering machine, motor and a microwave oven with a combined worth of about $1,000 were stolen," Williams says.

"The theft gained entrance to the restaurant by breaking a side window," the chief reports.

Karl is investigating the burglary.

Ammo Plant officials to address Symposium

By EDGAR PEREZ

Hancock Bank's 15th annual Economic Symposium Wednesday will feature two officials of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant at NSTL in Hancock County.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert F. Bowers, the plant's commanding officer, and Kenneth S. Cole, vice president and general manager of Mason Chamberlin, Inc., operators of the plant, will discuss the plant's impact on Hancock County.

Bowers and Cole will be joined by three other principals in the luncheon event scheduled from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in Broadwater Beach Hotel's Crown Room.

Hancock Bank's board chairman, Donald Sutter, will serve as master of ceremonies and Leo W. Seal Jr., bank president, will deliver a welcoming address. Dr. Homer Moody, a member of the bank's board of directors, will deliver the invocation.

Other speakers include Dr. Loren C. Scott, professor of economics and director of the Division of Research at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, who will project an economic outlook for the 1980's.

John F. Martin, president of Paccoco, Inc., a subsidiary of Fruehauf Corporation of Alameda, Calif., will discuss Paccoco's operations in the Port of Gulfport.

R. L. Hartung, general manager of Chevron's Pascagoula refinery, is slated to explore his company's $1 billion conversion project in Jackson County.

Attendance at the annual Hancock Bank Economic Symposiums is by invitation.

Weekly Broilers

WEEKLY BROILERS, WEEK ENDING FEB. 7.

BROILER-TYPE

Hatcheries in the State set 6,497,000 eggs for broiler chicks during the week ending February 7, 1981, 5 percent under the previous week and 3 percent under the corresponding week a year ago.

There were 5,912,000 broiler chicks placed on Mississippi farms during the week ending February 7, 1981, 3 percent above the previous week and 2 percent over the corresponding week a year ago. Cumulative placements for 1981 are 34,007,000 broiler chicks — 1 percent below last year's figure at this time.

EGG-TYPE

In the four states that accounted for about 24 percent of the hatch of all-egg-type chicks in the U.S. in 1979, settings during the week ending February 7, 1981, were down 6 percent and hatchings were down 19 percent from one year ago.

SELLING CANDY—Bay Senior High Band members selling candy to Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett and acting Waveland Mayor Barbara Rappold in Bay St. Louis City Hall recently are Gary Adam, drum major; Bennett; Rappold; Les Parker and Sharon Raphael, band members; and Pat Monti, band aid (parents of band members who sponsored the project). Funds from the candy sale will enable the band to attend a state competition in Jackson the first week in April. Band members will be going door to door in the community selling chocolate covered nuts and chocolate bars. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?—James Raymond, assistant dean of the graduate school at the University of Alabama and member of the social studies department, informs Bay Senior High seniors of what to expect at many universities in which they might enroll. Raymond says college core-curriculums are changing to include requirements in many different fields before allowing graduation. Harvard studies have shown many college graduates who specialized in one area are not 'educated' after graduation. "Do not just ask what I can take just to make money in the future. Ask is it important that I become an educated person," Raymond told the seniors in his recent appearance here. Court orders restitutions

Some $1,119 in restitution was ordered by Youth Court Referee Michael D. Haas to be paid by children involved in delinquent acts for the month of January.

As soon as these funds are paid to the court, the victims will be reimbursed, Haas noted.

Some $255 was collected this month on the restitution account, and reimbursement payments have already been made in that amount to the victims.

Seven court cases were sealed and ten children were released from probation and their files closed.

When a child has reached the age of 21 years of age, the court records on this individual are closed and sealed; he then has every right to deny that he has ever been in any trouble. The slate is wiped clean and he can start anew, the judge explained.

The Department of Youth Services is presently seeking a qualified candidate to fill a second youth court counselor position.

Anyone interested and possessing a degree in Counseling, juvenile justice or related fields should contact the current Youth Court Counselor, Brian Hutton, at 467-7945 or Judy Ralph with the State Employment Office, at 467-6572.

Power company suit settlement headed for consumer pockets

Electricity customers of Mississippi Power Company and Coast Electric Power Association will be the ultimate beneficiaries of a $55 million settlement won by MPC in a 1976 federal court action.

Peabody Coal Company has agreed to pay Mississippi Power Company $55 million in settlement of a six-year-old breach of contract suit arising out of Peabody's failure to supply 1.3 million tons of coal per year for the utility's Watson Electric Generating Plant in Harrison County.

Alan Barton, Mississippi Power Company president and chief operating officer, said, "Mississippi Power Company filed this suit to protect its customers from increased fuel costs which resulted when the company had to buy substitute coal at prices higher than those provided for in a long-term contract with Peabody Coal Company."

"All of the money from the settlement, except expenses for litigation and distribution of the refunds, will be returned to Mississippi Power Company's customers in the form of check or credits on their electric service bills. We estimate that the amount of money to be returned to our customers will exceed $52 million, but we cannot estimate at this time the amount that each individual customer will receive. The amount and timing of these refunds will be determined as quickly as possible."

"Within the next few weeks, Mississippi Power Company will file with the Public Service Commission for its approval a plan for refunding the money. However, customers should not expect refund checks or credits immediately because many details must be worked out before a comprehensive distribution plan can be finalized," Barton emphasized.

Under terms of the agreement, Peabody Coal Company will pay to Mississippi Power Company $40 million in 1981 and the remaining $15 million over a five-year period ending in 1986.

Barton said that a three-member arbitration panel, to which the case was referred by the United States District Court in Biloxi, had concurred with the terms of the agreement and that the Mississippi Public Service Commission had approved the settlement as being in the best interest of Mississippi Power Company's customers.

The suit originally was filed in United States District Court in Biloxi by Mississippi Power Company in May, 1975.

The action followed notification by Peabody Coal Company that it was reducing the contracted supply of coal from an underground mine in Illinois from 1.76 million tons to 460,000 tons annually.

Peabody Coal Company claimed that reasons beyond its control, such as labor problems and mining conditions, prevented supplying the full amount of coal from mines named in the 1968 contract.

The district court ordered the dispute submitted to a three-member arbitration panel, as provided for in the contract, and hearings began in St. Louis, Mo., in early 1978.

After a lengthy trial, the arbitration panel ruled in favor of Mississippi Power Company, finding that Peabody Coal Company committed an unexcused breach of contract and ordered further hearings to determine any damages to which Mississippi Power Company might be entitled.

Extensive hearings on the question of damages were conducted from June through December, 1980.

Mississippi Power Company, a member of the Southern Electric system, is headquartered at Gulfport.

The company provides electric service to more than 157,800 customers in 23 southeast Mississippi counties.

Wholesale electric service is provided to three REA-financed electric cooperatives which, in turn, distribute electricity to customers in rural areas of southeast Mississippi.

Henry Thomas, general manager of Coast Electric Power Association, said his customers would also benefit from the settlement since Coast Electric is a wholesale customer of Mississippi Power Company.

"Coast Electric Power Association has followed the Mississippi Power Company—Peabody Coal Company litigation closely since its beginning, since the outcome directly affects consumers of Coast Electric," Thomas said.

Information provided by officials of MPCo prior to press releases by the Mississippi Public Service Commission and MPCo indicate that Coast Electric and MPCo's other two rural electric wholesale customers will receive refunds for the period covered in MPCo's settlement, he explained.

"Coast Electric will in the near future be meeting with MPCo's officials to determine details and methods affecting such refunds. It is our opinion that percentage agreements will be easily reached utilizing records of purchases and sales," Thomas continued.

"However, any actual transfer of refunds will be dependent upon the rulings on this case and negotiations between Coast Electric and MPCo. At this time we are not in a position to project when this time will occur," he stated.

"Based on hastily compiled data, it is our opinion that an estimated 15 percent of the total refund to MPCo will be refunded to Coast Electric and the other two rural electric cooperatives, based on purchases by each cooperative during the contested period," Thomas explained.

Each cooperative will have to determine procedures they will use and the policy they will take in handling the refund.

"However, Coast Electric's Board of Directors has in the past refunded any such monies back to the member, and I feel they will take the same position in this instance, which I intend to recommend," Thomas continued.

"It is my belief that these refunds will be distributed to members of record during the contested years, based on their total KWH purchases," Thomas feels.

"It is extremely difficult to determine the actual dollar amount which will be involved. However, my estimate would be that Coast Electric's members will be refunded monies in excess of $2 million as the money becomes available," he estimated.

repaired. He stated the roof is blistering in places as the result of patching 'already there' and requested the board wait until warmer weather before repairing those areas. He said it would allow time for the building to finish its first expansion cycle. He added, the blisters are not leaking.

Also during the Saturday meeting, the board:

Approved Harlin E. Hill as federal coordinator for the school district for the 1981-2 school year;

Authorized Hill to attend a seminar on Program Development of Gifted and Talented Students, to be held in New Orleans April 1;

Approved the resignation of William J. Overall as elementary teacher at Hancock North Central effective Feb. 29;

Approved a 10 acre 16th section $250 per-year land lease near Silver Creek to C.B. Israel and reclassified the land from forestry to agricultural.

Outlaw treasure long-sought in Catahoula area

By GRADY THIGPEN

The widow of James Copeland, the famous highway man and hold-up man of some 125 years ago, came into the area that is now known as Mint Head, 3 miles east of where McNeill now is.

She came a short time after her husband had been hung at Old Augusta, then the county seat of Perry County, along in the 1850s.

She wanted to visit her husband's main hide-out location, the place he went to when the law got after him so close that he was afraid of being caught.

Copeland had selected this hideout location because of its extreme inaccessibility. This was, of course, long before the railroad came through.

Coming from the South, Lake Ponchartrain had to be crossed. Back then there were no bridges there. Then a distance further in this direction, Honey Island, then an almost impenetrable jungle, had to be crossed.

From the west, to reach his hideout, wide Pearl River swamp had to be crossed. From both north and east there were no trails reaching into this isolated area. From the south there was about a 40-mile wide wild forest with no signs to direct to this hide-out.

Copeland's hideout on Catahoula Creek was said to be near the location of his hidden illegal money-making setup, which was located at what is now called Mint Head.

Mint Head was completely surrounded by small streams and thus most apt not to be found by any searching party.

It seems that a small stream formed near this location and split into two streams that came back together a short distance away, thus forming a small island.

This very small island, so securely hidden, came to be called Mint Head as this was the location of the place where Copeland and his men made bogus money. The word "mint" means a place to make money.

Mint Head is a short distance north of the McNeill truck stop on Highway 59, east of McNeill.

When Payton Lee, whose descendants now live in Leetown, first came to this section he first settled up near the location of Mint Head, but later moved to Leetown.

Lavelle Lee, a great grandson of Payton Lee, told a most interesting story of the time that the widow of Copeland came to his grandfather's house searching for the location of Copeland's hide-away. How she got there he did not know, but she had found her way through the woods to his grandfather's house.

Mrs. Copeland wanted to know the location of her husband's abode when he lived there. Though the Lee home was some distance from the Copeland place, due to the publicity generated by Copeland, most of the people living in the area knew where the outlaw had lived.

After spending the night at the Lee home, Mrs. Copeland told them that she had no money to pay for her lodging. She left early in the morning and was gone all day.

Late in the day the woman returned and asked to spend the night again. When permission was granted she paid for her lodging for both nights. That morning she had no money, but a few hours later she returned to the Lee's home with money.

This led the Lee family to believe that she had found her husband's money and had gotten at least a part of it. "This true story," said Mr. Lee, "has been told to the children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren of Payton Lee down through the years."

There has been much speculation down through the years about the Copeland money which he told about in his confessions as given to the sheriff of Perry County, the man who later hung him.

It was widely believed, because of what he said in his confession, that the Copeland money was hidden in holes dug in the ground on a bluff on Catahoula Creek.

Because of this belief just about every bluff on Catahoula has been searched for gold hidden there. I once owned a mile long strip of land on Catahoula Creek and every, even small bluff on that land had been dug up with many signs of digging for Copeland's money.

The reader will almost surely wonder what became of the equipment used to make the counterfeit money. More than one old timer has told me that it was loaded onto a wagon, hauled to Pearl River, and dumped into a deep hole.

In my search for information about bogus money that was used in Gainesville, I had more than one person tell me that their bad money was produced at Mint Head by Copeland's men.

Bay High, St. Stanislaus eliminated from tournament

Both the Bay High boys and the Bay High girls were upended in close contests Tuesday night in Piquette, eliminating them from further action in the district 8 class AA basketball tournament.

The upset minded Tigers came up on the short end of a 78-71 score against the host Piquette Tide. High scorer for Bay High was Roger Woodall with 25 points. Team mate Darrell Robinson added 22.

Ocean Springs nipped the Lady Tigers 46-42 ending their tournament hopes. Barbara Gillum's 16 points was tops for Bay High. Karen Tillman tossed in 12 points in a losing cause.

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws fell victim to Moss Point Thursday night after reaching the quarter finals by blasting St. Martin 62-32 in an opening round contest Monday.

Brian Logan and Joe Sala each hit for 14 points in that outing. Rodney Carr connected for 12 points.

Friday night the Rocks were sent home by Moss Point 71-41. Richard Brown and David McDonnell paced St. Stanislaus attack with 12 points each, followed by Joe Sala with 11.

Poplarville to host VFW auxiliary meet

Lucille Boudreaux, president of Theodore S. Price Ladies Auxiliary No. 3253 to the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Harris Boudreaux Sr. vice commander of Post No. 3253, attended the district I meeting held at Post No. 10024 in Pascagoula.

District I Commander Fayard and president Eva Spears presided over the business session.

Janice White, senior vice-president, representing president Pat

Blackeney, stressed the importance of membership. The main order of business was the District I convention to be held May 16-17 at the Holiday Inn, Hillsdale, on Highway 59.

Poplarville will be host to the convention. Jene Woodward, National Buddy Poppy chairman, spoke on National Poppy child, Candy Reck, who is being sponsored by Biloxi No. 2434.

Woodward stated that she welcomed cards and letters.

In other business, the status of the POW Vietnam Veterans following the hostage release.

Members were encouraged to write President Reagan to direct his attention to this matter.

A toll free number to call for information is 1-800-325-5300. A mail-gram cost $3.60 for 50 words.

Dick Easterling, department commander, stated that Copper T. Holt, Veteran's representative in Washington on Legislation has asked the administration not to cut the budget on veteran's benefits.

Referring to the fact that the VFW can endorse candidates for U.S. Congress, commander Easterling stated, "Now they are coming to the VFW, not the VFW going to them."

The Theodore S. Price Ladies Auxiliary met Wednesday night in the Gulf National Bank Civic Room with Ursula Favre, Sr. vice-president presiding.

Russell, Beckett wed in Methodist ceremony

Deborah Elise Beckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Beckett of Diamondhead, became the bride of Michael Eugene Russell of Kenner, La., in an afternoon ceremony Saturday, January 31, at the Main Street United Methodist Church, Bay St. Louis.

The Reverend Willis Britt officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Music was presented by Melvin Alford, director of music for the St. Charles Avenue Christian Church of New Orleans.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Ralph Collins of Blytheville, Ark. and Donald E. Russell of Flat River, Mo. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory crepe back satin designed by Gene Schwartz of Waveland. The fitted bodice, overlaid in lace, featured a portrait neckline and the skirt swept to a chapel length train. Full bishop sleeves adorned with lace flowers ended with ruffled lace cuffs. Her veil was held in place by a matching lace headpiece. She carried a cascade of peach roses, bronze and white carnations and baby's breath.

The matron of honor was Mrs. William Freney of Port Sulphur, La. She wore a formal gown of peach crepe, and carried a bouquet of peach roses, bronze carnations and baby's breath with matching headband.

Donald J. Villarrubia of Metairie, La., was best man. Ushers were John W. Beckett, brother of the bride, stationed in Mainz, Germany, and Philip Englert of Metairie.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Diamondhead.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Douglas Kewley and Mrs. Jack Griffin III, of Gretna, La., cousins of the bride; Pat Williams of Metairie; and Mrs. Billy Sills of Kiln.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell will reside in Chateaux Estates, Kenner, La.

Pulpit Points

BY DR. L.S. WALKER

By L. S. WALKER, D.D. YOU CAN BE HAPPY OR UN-HAPPY! Dr. Roland Q. Leavell who was this writer's pastor when only a lad of a boy at Poyune, Mississippi's First Baptist Church, made this statement in the introduction of his book, "The Sheer Joy of Living."

"The desire for happiness within all men is as natural as breathing, as universal as hunger, and as worthy as worship."

Happiness can flourish in any climate, grow in any racial soil, be enjoyed under any economic circumstances. This is true because happiness depends on what is in the heart. That is why Christians can and do live the happiest life.

"Happiness is like a perishable fruit - it must be used every day, for it cannot be kept in cold storage. Christ taught us that it is happier to give than to receive, so if we want happiness we must learn to give it away."

Happiness is the one thing which the more we share with others the more it mounts up in its return to us.

Dr. C. H. Baylor, assistant medical director for The Texas Company, says whether one is happy or un-happy is largely a matter of either remembering or forgetting to count one's blessings along the way of life.

Dr. Baylor lists what he terms "ten of the most common unhealthy thinking habits, guaranteed to produce unhappiness."

We list them for your consideration:

1. To forget the many good things in life you have and to overemphasize the few things you lack;
2. To think that money is more important than it actually is;
3. To think you are indispensable;
4. To think you have too much to do;
5. To think that you are exceptional, or entitled to special privileges;
6. To forget that a sense of responsibility is essential to a democratic society;
7. To think that you can control your automatic nervous system by reason or will;
8. To forget others;
9. To cultivate a pessimistic outlook; and
10. To feel sorry for yourself - perhaps the worst mental habit.

May we add a few practical rules which could contribute immeasurably to a happier state of mind in our age of frantic dispatch and impatience:

- Walk with calm deliberation when others are running in mad haste - be a rebel in the "rat race;"
- Whisper with quiet assurance when others are shouting with frustrating anger;
- Sleep with abiding confidence in God when others are tossed in restlessness;
- Smile lovingly when others frown in anger;
- Learn to wait with patience when others hurry in confusion and uncertainty;
- Stay busy - work when others are idle;
- Pray when others are doubting;
- Think when those about us are in deadening confusion;
- In the midst of turmoil let calm composure possess you; and

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Prov. 3:5-6).

This is to know inner calm in spite of everything, and is the test of serenity.

"Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God" (Ps. 146:5). Happiness can come in sharing a real Christian experience with others.

Jesuit to address Spiritual Renewal

Father Harold Cohen, S.J., will speak on "Mary in Scripture" during a day of spiritual renewal at Our Lady of Fatima Church, 3800 Pass Road, Biloxi, Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Fr. Cohen will speak twice. Mass in honor of Blessed Mother is included.

Fr. Cohen's mother, Mrs. Harold F. Cohen, Sr., is a member of St. Paul's parish in Pass Christian.

Fr. Cohen can be heard each week night on WWL radio 87 in New Orleans, 9:45-10 p.m.

Participants are urged to bring sack lunch to share.

Prayer groups, sodalities, members of the Legion of Mary and interested persons are invited.

The event is sponsored by Charismatic Renewal Services of the Diocese of Biloxi.

St. Clare's Sodality appoints 1981 officers

The Sodality of Our Lady of St. Clare held a meeting on Tuesday, January 27 at the Parish hall.

Meeting opened with a prayer. A thanksgiving prayer for the hostages release was offered.

Mrs. Ivey Cox, prefect, conducted the business session.

The following officers were appointed for the year of 1981: prefect - Mrs. Ivey Cox; vice-prefect - Mrs. Joseph Roppolo; recording secretary - Mrs. Roland Gallivan; corresponding secretary - Mrs. M.R. Grider; treasurer - Mrs. Adrien Chagnard; and publicity - Mrs. Edward Canady.

A new member, Mrs. Felix Schevermann, was welcomed into the sodality.

The next meeting will be

Tuesday, February 24 at 2 p.m. in the parish hall. Meeting closed with a prayer with 39 members present.

DRUG QUIZ

By Curt Scarborough, Ph.D. Used by permission; all rights reserved by DATE, St. Louis, Mo. QUESTION - The term "drug abuse" usually conjures up an image of illicit substances such as heroin, cocaine, and marijuana being used by men. However, a greater problem exists among women who are dependent on legal prescription drugs. How many are there in this country?

- a) 500,000
- b) 1 million
- c) 1 1/2 million
- d) 2 million

ANSWER - The House Select Committee on Narcotic Abuse and Control recently heard a report stating that some two million women are dependent on legal prescription drugs. Furthermore, it is estimated that some five million women are abusing alcohol, often in combination with other drugs. Correct answer - d.

For further information about alcohol and drug abuse write Christian Action Commission, P.O. Box 530, Jackson, MS 39205.

The Spinal Column

WILLIAM L. POWELL, D.C.

Questions From Our Patients

PATIENT: When should a patient see a chiropractor?

DR. POWELL: Everyone should have a spinal examination at least twice a year. Any spinal distortion or nerve irritation could then be quickly eliminated. Preventive health care enables one to live a more healthy and productive life.

PATIENT: Why is the spinal column so important?

DR. POWELL: Your brain controls all the functions in your body. It sends vital nerve impulses to all areas of the body through your spinal cord. It receives important messages from the body as well. When a spinal bone becomes misaligned, it may irritate the sensitive spinal nerves, thus interfering with these important spinal messages.

PATIENT: If there is nerve irritation in the spinal column what type problems may exist?

DR. POWELL: This depends on the organ or area of the body controlled by the irritated nerve. For example, if an irritation would occur to the spinal nerves in the neck, a number of acutely painful conditions could result - such as migraine headaches.

PATIENT: What could a chiropractor do for neck pain, common headaches or even migraines?

DR. POWELL: Following a complete physical examination and X-ray study, he would locate the areas of nerve involvement and remove the irritation by correcting the vertebral misalignment.

PATIENT: Is the adjustment painful?

DR. POWELL: Using proper chiropractic technique, there should be NO pain when making the correction.

Region I Science Fair set in March

The Region I Science Fair, held each spring at the University of Southern Mississippi, has experienced tremendous growth over the past 10 years in number of participants, spectators, and number of persons viewing the exhibits and number of community supporters.

The Regional event is conducted by the USM College of Science and Technology in cooperation with the Department of Science Education where State Science Fair Director Lawrence J. Bellipanni is an instructor.

Projects for the event will be judged by officials from the College in addition to representatives from several area corporations.

Dates for Region I competition, determined by grades, are: grades 1-6 March 25 and grades 7-12 on March 27-28. Co-directors are Professor Bellipanni and Herb Lamb of Harrison County Public Schools.

Mississippi students from 14 counties are expected to enter the competition. Although the March 25-28 dates may be a month or so in the future, students in south Mississippi are already working on exhibits in all fields of science and technology including social science, psychology, chemistry, zoology, medicine, health, physics and engineering.

Over 5,000 persons viewed the Regional exhibits last spring which displayed more than 2,000 entries. Industrial and civic groups supporting the annual event include South Central Bell, South Miss. Electric Power Association, Miss. Power and Light Co., Hercules, International Paper Co., St. Regis Paper Co., South Miss. Engineering Society, Northern Electric, Faulkner Concrete Co., Hattiesburg Lions Club, First Miss. National Bank, and Hughes and New Oil Co.

Jeff Davis plans Job Fair Feb. 25

It's called a Job Fair. And since it was begun two years ago at Gulf Coast Junior College's Jefferson Davis Campus, it has given thousands of students the opportunity to meet and talk with representatives of various agencies from as far away as Tennessee.

The fair this year will be on Wednesday, Feb. 25, in the campus commons area. "We're expecting about 100 people from more than 50 agencies to be on hand," said Gene Rester, counselor-recruitment-placement officer.

Purpose of the fair "is not to help students land jobs 'on the spot,' but rather to help students learn how to handle job interviews and promote employment opportunities. If jobs do materialize, so much the better," Rester explained.

He said employers interested in academic, vocational and technical students are invited "so the entire student population can be served."

To illustrate how "far-reaching" the fair is, Rester said a nurse recruiter from Nashville is expected this year. Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama also will be represented.

Feb. 28, in the College of Business Administration, Building Room 106.

Class will meet from 9-11:30 a.m. and from 1-4 p.m. on Saturday.

For further information, contact the Department of Conferences and Workshops, Southern Station Box 5056, Hattiesburg, MS 39401 or telephone (601) 266-4265.

Southern plans ACT workshop

The Department of Conferences and Workshops at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg will offer a one-day workshop to benefit candidates taking the American College Test.

Special emphasis will be placed on the mathematics portion of the test by Dr. Mac Lunan, USM-Natchez.

Registration will be held from 8:30-9 a.m. Saturday,

Story Hour to feature

Three Bears

Each Thursday at 10:30 a.m. a story hour for preschool children is conducted at City-County Library in Bay St.
Louis.

This week two filmstrips will be shown: "Are you my mother?" by P.D. Eastman, and a homemade version of
"The Three Bears." The song
"Old MacDonald had a Farm" will be dramatized with paper bag puppets. The Three Billy
Goats Gruff will also be told.
The library will celebrate
Dr. Seuss' 77th birthday with a special story hour Feb. 26.—be sure to attend," said Becky
Mitchum, children's services librarian.
